

Baby Formula Resources

- Local pediatricians' offices can provide referrals for families who need specific brands due to allergies and need to use WIC.
- Social media groups are creating local donor banks in some communities for families to find or donate formula. HOWEVER, families should be careful as there are some scams and price gouging going on.
- Many community organizations are purchasing formula for families who cannot afford it due to price increases. Some are also paying for gas for families since they are having to drive to multiple places to find formula.
- Communities are mobilizing networks of volunteers to search for and buy formula for families being served by local organizations.
- Some pediatricians' offices have sample cans of formula they can give to families.
- Pregnancy Centers are working with local community organizations to help supply formula to families.
- Breast Milk Banks can help if you have one in your community.
- If a community has a First Steps program, they can help make referrals to local agencies who still have supply.
- Local Department of Public Health resources.
- Fact sheet from HHS for helping families find formula: <https://www.hhs.gov/formula/index.html>
- Tips from AAP on what to do if you cannot find formula- <https://healthychildren.org/English/Pages/default.aspx>
- Local pediatrician should always be contacted if you have concerns about which formula to give your infant. <https://dph.georgia.gov/press-releases/2022-05-18/dph-urges-parents-talk-their-pediatricians-guidance-during-baby-formula>

Special thanks to Laura E. Griggs, LMSW, Program Specialist for providing this information.

GEORGIA DIVISION OF FAMILY & CHILDREN SERVICES

<https://dfcs.georgia.gov/>